Entrepreneurial spirit and innovation are the hallmark of the hearth industry.

From our earliest inventions that brought low-cost heat to homes during the OPEC oil crisis, to our modern products that bring cleaner-burning heat, warmth and beauty to homes today, our industry is answering the energy needs of consumers everywhere. Through the use of codes and standards development, voluntary programs and creative technology geared to meet consumer demands, industry leaders are constantly innovating to bring new, and “Greener,” reduced-emissions products to consumers. These products offer superior efficiency and dramatically cleaner emissions, all packaged in exciting new designs to match any level of “Green” a customer wants.
