

David Fraser

David has +25 years of executive-level leadership experience in the residential, commercial, construction, and building materials industries across Canada and the United States. He has held executive and non-executive roles with manufacturing companies such as Rockwell Automation, Schneider Electric, United States Gypsum Corp., Overhead Door Corp. and ASSA ABLOY. In addition to holding a degree in Economics and Business from Western University in Ontario, he has also participated in an international executive development program with INSEAD, Harvard, and the London School of Economics. Dave is very committed and involved in several charitable and community service activities and, looks forward to participating and supporting the HPBA as a member of the board.